DETAILED ACTION

The finality of the rejection in Paper No. 8 is withdrawn and new grounds of rejection are set forth in this Office Action.

Double Patenting

Claim 5 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75 as being a substantial duplicate of claim 12.

When two claims in an application are duplicates or else are so close in content that they both cover the same thing, despite a slight difference in wording, it is proper after allowing one claim to object to the other as being a substantial duplicate of the allowed claim. See MPEP § 706.03(k).

Claim 12 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75 as being a substantial duplicate of claim 5.

When two claims in an application are duplicates or else are so close in content that they both cover the same thing, despite a slight difference in wording, it is proper after allowing one claim to object to the other as being a substantial duplicate of the allowed claim. See MPEP § 706.03(k).

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-3, 5-8, and 10-12 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-11 of U.S. Patent No. 6,162,350. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both sets of claims disclose a hydroprocessing method utilizing a bulk metal catalyst comprising molybdenum, tungsten, oxygen, and nickel having an X-ray diffraction pattern with crystalline peaks at $d=2.53$ Angstroms and $d=1.70$ Angstroms.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize cobalt in lieu of nickel as a component of the bulk metal catalyst because both cobalt and nickel are both Group VIII metals and would be expected to exhibit similar properties.

Claims 1-3, 5-8, and 10-12 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-8 of copending Application No. 09/869,983. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both sets of claims disclose a hydroprocessing method utilizing a bulk metal catalyst comprising molybdenum, tungsten, oxygen, and nickel having an X-ray diffraction pattern with crystalline peaks at $d=2.53$ Angstroms and $d=1.70$ Angstroms.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize a process wherein the molar ratio of $c:d$ is preferably $>0.01/1$, more preferably $>0.1/1$, still more preferably $1/10$ to $10/1$, still more preferably $1/3$ to $3/1$, most preferably $1/3$ to $3/1$, most preferably substantially equimolar amounts of Mo and W, e.g., $2/3$ to $3/2$; and $z=[2b + 6(c+d)]/2$ because the present set of claims discloses a $c:d$ ratio of $1/10$ to $10/1$ and it would be appropriate to adjust the ratio to create a bulk multimetallic catalyst with unique crystalline peaks. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to hydrocrack the effluent from the hydrotreated feedstock because this allows for greater sulfur reduction.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claims 1-3, 5-8, and 10-12 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-15 of copending Application No. 09/869,988. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both sets of claims disclose a hydroprocessing method utilizing a bulk metal catalyst comprising molybdenum, tungsten, oxygen, and nickel having an X-ray diffraction pattern with crystalline peaks at $d=2.53$ Angstroms and $d=1.70$ Angstroms.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize two or more catalyst beds in a single reaction stage because it allows for greater sulfur removal.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Response to Arguments
